of the Mountain Meadows Massacre—Pursuit of the Murderers—Heart-Rending Details.

[Correspondence of the St. Joseph West.]

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, June 9, 1859

I have been absent from Camp Floyd since the 1st of March. I started with the Superintendent of Indian Affairs to the southern portion of the territory, to recover the children, survivors of the Mountain Meadows massacre. We went the hundred and fifty miles south of this, and rescued sixteen of the children. On our return we met Command going down to meet the Paymaster, as they were from California. With this command I met with Judge Cradlebaugh, one of our United States Judges, on his way down to find out something about the Mountain Meadows massacre. I could have me return with him as Deputy Marshal. I also heard from an Indian chief that there was another child back.

The massacre took place on the 19th of September, 1857. The massacred were emigrants from Arkansas, passing through to California. There were, as near as I can find out, about one hundred and forty in the train.

The train was composed of

The Meadows is a beautiful spot, about four miles in length, and one fourth of a mile wide at the lower end is a fine spring. They corralled their wagons, and were there three days in quietness, 25 miles from any settlement.

day, when, early on the morning of the fourth day, they were attacked, as they supposed, by a large party of Indians. The Indians fired on the emigrants and killed and wounded several. After this the emigrants set their wagon wheels on fire, and threw the earth up against the sides, making a snug defense. The Indians fought them for five days, having previously run them to their stock off. The emigrants were within ten yards of as fine a spring as you ever saw, but could get no water, for whenever one came out to get it, he was shot down. The spring has a high bank, a deep ravine makes off from it, and this the Indians were concealing. After five

For five or six days, a party of Mormons approached the corral with a white flag in hand, to show the emigrants that they were friends. The emigrants directly dressed a little girl in white and placed her at the mouth of the corral. The Mormon party then came in, sat down, and talked to the head man of the train for more than an hour, telling him that they had come as friends. The party to escort them back to Cedar City about 250 miles behind, provided they would give up their arms, and leave all they had behind. They promised to protect them from the Indians. They marched the party in front of them back on the road about 2,500 yards, when they back to the

The spot can speak for itself. When I stepped passed through the place I could walk for nearly a mile on bones, and skulls laying grinning at me, and women and children's hair in bunches hanging as a bushel.

There. They did not leave one to tell the tale. The eldest of the children is between seven and eight years of age. We have seventeen here. They are getting ready to send them to the friends in Arkansas, as there was $10,000 appropriated by Congress for that purpose—you can see by what means the Mormons have lived and supported their church. This was the richest man that ever passed through this country, and after killing all the party except seventeen little children, they took cattle, wagons and horses back to Cedar City and sold them at public sale. The children were divided out to different ones—

All the above has been sworn to before Judge addebaugh. He has issued warrants for all paes, but they fly to the mountains.

Hogs in Kentucky.
 We have been furnished, from the Auditor fice at Frankfort, with an abstract of the Ase's returns, showing the number of hogs in Kentucky. The returns so far, embrace sixty ounties. As soon as those from the remain-g counties are received, we shall publish them.
 will be seen there is an increase this year

As we have the returns, of 176,241 head, in-stating that the cultivation of the animals has been neglected in that State, and, also, that, understanding the reports circulated last winter at the hogs had been all "used up," owing to the high prices current, and the great dearth of corn, there are still "a few more left." We will state that the returns embrace all hogs, six months old, on the 10th of January, each year.

The Crops.

The past week has been, as regards the weather, all that could have been desired for the growing crops. The temperature up to Saturday went up, the thermometer ranging from 80 to 95, with copious showers Saturday afternoon and night. The corn is growing rapidly, and oats and grain coming on better than expected. The wheat is pretty generally harvested in Kentucky and southern Indiana and Ohio, and the quality very superior. Samples sent us from various sections of the past week were certainly the finest we ever seen, both as regards the length of the head and fulness of the grain. Indeed, we have no complaints from any part, except those portions of Ohio and Pennsylvania where the frost damaged the crop, as we stated three weeks ago, fully to the extent of one-third. There is no doubt, this, though many then thought the damage was far greater than this, but it has since been discovered such was not the case. Our advices from Tennessee complain of injury by rust, which lessens the yield.

Speaking in the aggregate, there can be no doubt that the indications are strongly in favor of a great abundance of food the coming season throughout the Union.—Cincinnati Price Current

THE GRAIN CROP OF RUSSIA.—A very important item of news brought by the Vanderbilt, is, the continued drought is damaging the grain crops of Southern Russia. Southern Russia is the great competitor of the United States in the European grain market; and in good seasons the exports from Russian Black Sea ports amount to millions of bushels, nine-tenths of which are wheat. It was the stoppage of this supply by the Crimean war that caused flour to advance to ten and twelve dollars per barrel in this country.

Min. Gaz.

The wheat crop in this county is pretty well harvested. It is above an average one, and the grain is of excellent quality. Corn is looking well. We learn from a friend who has traversed Ell and Jackson, that the wheat crop in these counties is excellent, being far above an average. Richmond Democrat, 7th.
